OPENING PARADE MILE LONG

Was a Spectacular Historical Pageant and a Typical Western Affair—Magnificent Feast a Feature.

News in the history of the city has never been so exciting as the opening of the Border Days celebration Saturday night. For four days the city has entertained a crowd estimated from five to seven thousand in the true western style. The days of forty-nine rough, open-airness of the west, and crowded music by the light and steps with halles gowning in the latest mode of Paris fashion. Blazing in them in gaily coloring kept company with the greatest variety of music in the city. The city has never before had so many things to see and do. Loose Hoofs and Horns

"Bill" Jones provided the cattle and says, had the fencing been of a more substantial nature, he would have had some wild enough for anyone here.

The "Duke of Toke", as the bucking bull raised by Cy Lee has been christened in his exhibition Saturday, gave the moving picture man a picture for which he will not take $500. The bull, by the way, was sought by Pendleton, but the Border Days people closed a deal for him Saturday and he is now their property.

The moving pictures taken of the show, are among the best of that nature ever made. They are being put out by the American Biograph Co., at Portland, independent firm and will be shown at Spokanes fair week, also at Pendleton this week. The various state rights will be sold to other companies. Over 5000 feet of film was used in taking them.

Art Acord, who was badly injured Thursday has been confined to his room at the Imperial until Wednesday morning. A bad left leg required constant attention of a doctor and it is very doubtful if he will participate in the Pendleton show.

Mrs. Blazett does not like the idea of her husband doing the steer bull dogging and it will be recalled by those who witnessed his work in this line, that his wife was always near when he made the leap from the horse to the steer's back, telling him when to make the jump.

Del Eagle received an injury Thursday, getting a couple of severe kicks in the side, and was not at his best after that. The game is a rough one and while Eagle was suffering from his injuries, he went into the arena and roped, read and tied the toughest of them.

The agricultural display, while not as extensive as of former years, contained some excellent samples of grains, products, etc. At this time the complete list of premium winners is not available but we expect to be able to publish them later.

A number of schools, including those at Cottonwood and Grangeville, were closed during the celebration so as to permit the attendance of the pupils.

"Rich" Neah of the Salmon River, John Baer of Cottonwood and Arthur Overman of Grangeville, who were the judges, gave universal satisfaction and filled well a most difficult position.

The time keepers were Ed Knorr of Grangeville and Henry Eifers of the Salmon River country. Both made ideal men for the place.

Next year's shows promise to be the biggest ever already arrangements are being made for Texas cattle and wild horses from the southwest. These with the local stock will furnish all kinds of material for the punchers to work on.

L. M. Harris the efficient chairman, is entitled to a whole lot of praise for the manner in which he filled his office. The position is a very trying one and Harris had much to contend with. He never was too busy however, to give a civil answer and straighten out any tangles.

Both Jones was taken by the moving picture man and will be featured as the biggest cow boy in the world. The weight of Both and his saddle is 836 pounds. Who can beat it?

For the size of the crowd handled there was little trouble and the police calendar is a very light one. Every body was inclined to "Out 'Em Loose" and also accord the other fellow the same privilege.

Frank Van Deventer had no easy job in keeping the records of the show.
